

Excitement in the Jungle

By Grace

In the winter school holiday Joe and Nicky went camping in Africa with their mum, dad and their brother Joe. Nicky, who was always really nice to people was holding his hand because he was a bit scared when he was walking with his family in the jungle.

Before they went on holiday Dad won £3,000 in a competition and that's why they could afford such a wonderful holiday.

As they were walking through the forest they were chatting and could hear birds and monkeys calling to each other. Suddenly, it went all dark and quiet and everyone looked worried. Dad grabbed the children and told mum to hurry and follow him. Dad knew there was something very wrong but before they could get any further through the forest they saw lightening and heard thunder. Suddenly the clouds burst and heavy rain fell.

They were trapped because all around them was thick mud. Everyone felt scared and the children started to cry. They waited three hours for the rain to stop and they were getting really hungry and thirsty.

Suddenly a lion appeared with someone who looked like Tarzan walking behind it. The man said, "Don't worry we are friendly." Dad replied, "Oh good can you help us?" The man showed them a safe way through the jungle and waved goodbye to them.

When they got back to the hotel they went to the bathroom and had a hot shower and then headed for the restaurant and had a huge dinner.

Everybody was so happy that they got back to the hotel safely.