

Joe's Accident
by Hannah, Y4 Parkdale Primary School

One misty Monday morning it was the start of a new week and back to school. A girl called Sita woke up and had her breakfast. She kissed her mum goodbye and set off for Cardale School. On the way she met her friends Nicky, Joe and Ashley.

Joe was kind, quiet and very thoughtful and his nice friends were Nicky, Ashley and Sita, but Ashley was his best friend ever and they loved having sleepovers and going to rugby together on a Saturday afternoon. Sometimes he could be a bit silly and could do some boasting when he won matches.

Sita enjoyed school a lot and could not wait to get there because she had a great teacher who always looked out for her. Sita sat down at her wooden desk and listened to her teacher, Mrs White. Mrs White was explaining about the six weeks holiday coming up. It would be the last day on Wednesday, so she said, "Make the most of it! Now let's get on with the lessons." Sita felt extremely excited.

"I'm having a summer sleepover, are you coming?" said Sita to Joe.

"Yes sure," replied Joe.

They looked at the clock and realised it would be playtime soon.

When they got outside they couldn't find anything to do, so Joe got into a fight and got angry and climbed a tree to get away from Ashley. Joe screamed and Sita ran to the bottom of the tree. She yelled, "Don't worry I'm going to get some help." As she turned around Joe fell off the tree and luckily Ashley caught him, but Joe still bumped his head on the tree trunk and he lay very still as if he was dead.

After a little while the ambulance turned up and Joe was examined, but they said he was ok but it's probably best that Joe goes home. Mrs White said, "See you at school tomorrow." Everyone cheered and lifted Ashley in the air. The next day Joe and Ashley were best friends again.
